------THE MISSING SONG.

To-day I had by heart a song, To night I rannot sing it; I thought 'two sweet, and that ere long To others I would bring it.

A bird saint in the plane free top, Sang long and iond and sweetly, And cutsol me from my toil to stop, And charmed my soul completely.

The wind brought swe t from distant fields Of blooming grain and clover, And in the promise of tich yields God's lave 1 conf I discover.

Some thing of leavily med it; My song was such an ecstacy, I thought I'd not forget it. It made me prophet for the time, I knew Truth and could show it; Faith, Hope and Love I wrought in thyme,

And was to men a post, Te-morrow, back may come the bird, And sweet winds bring me joyanes, But men sty of the song I heard Will be to me a moyanes.

For I, though do the lest, I can, Alas! that men should know it, An acidier, to my follow man, A peopled or a poet.

Yet I would be you, triends, to go And find those missing verses. For God each day, to man, I know. That song of Love rehearses.

This language, says the Journal, merits careful study. The order is so worded as "to guard two threatned positions, while being in itself a menace.

First, the President had it in mind, if his tiends tell us a right, to reinstate one or more of the obnoxious Gimpediments¹⁹ whom Sheridan and Sickies have so eavalierly removed from office, because of their fincompetency or disloyalty. General Grant "flanks" this intent by a positive order prohibiting such restorations. The second point guarded is practically less obvious and important, but politically nuch more so. We interpret this Special Order No. 429 as a direct response to the gratuitous and complicating instructions which the President went out of it's way to incorporate into the orders assigning Generals Hancock and Cauby to command, in the I berrowed it."

As this direction, however wise each proper at ordinary times, contrasted, both in language and spirit, with the order just issued by General Great to the Commander of the Fifth District, it became necessary for Genend Grout to reassert his authority in menistakable terms. He was compelled to force a direct issue, not by the use of general and deceptive brighings, but by some specific permission or probabilion, which should command Military Commanders not to exercise "any and all authority" on some definite subject, for the simple reason that the General-in-Ci ief had specifyly evilated

It has been determined to fundsh every official, civil and military under the govern ment with a copy of the recent proclamation of "civil supremacy" with the injunctions of loyalty and obedience to the laws. A circular will shortly be issued to the heads of departments with appropriate instructions from the President, charging them respectively with the duty of distributing the proclama ion to all persons in the public service.

A correspondent says the excited state of affairs has brought large numbers of Democratic politicians, who swarm the lobbies of the White House and applied the President. In fact, the city is getting to have a lively book, and the hotels are doing a good business on the strength of Mr. Johnson's course. The President's last proclamation has been much commented on, and everybody not inside the President's ring wants to know instantly littled, his body being cut entirely what it means. The White House lobby are jubilant. The President has recovered rom his illness of the last few days, and expresses himself as "on the war path again." He has been overwhelmed with letters of indorsement from the united democracy of the country, from Maine to Texas, especially Texas. He declares a change in the Cabinet may be expected at my time.
